

Environmental Management ISO 14001

You apply a defined environmental policy and include environmental aspects in your business decisions. Now you can prove your commitment to the environment even more clearly with the internationally recognised DEKRA certificate and seal and show your customers that you are moving in the direction of the future. The certification of your environmental management system according to ISO 14001 will not only increase the trust and confidence placed in you but also provides you with an assessment of your system for compliance with statutory regulations.

Sense and purpose of the ISO 14001 standard

This standard is suitable for any organisation in any sector. It pursues the aim of creating a balance between operational profitability and environmental protection. ISO 14001 is the world's most important specification of what environmental management in organisations should cover and achieve. The application of this standard offers you the opportunity to coordinate your environmental activities – with the focus on a continuous improvement process for reducing the burden on the environment. You will also gain an effective tool for identifying cost-saving potential.

DEKRA Certification will show that you have proved your environmental credentials. Our certificates and DEKRA seals often provide the basis for being able to achieve success on national and international markets.
