DEKRA Launches Free Online Event October 29-30, 2025

DEKRA Digital Trust Conference: The Future of Trusted Technology

- ▶ How do we engineer trust into new technologies
- ▶ Artificial Intelligence (AI), Cybersecurity, and Functional Safety are essential
- ▶ Topics: Technological Trends, Automotive Industry, Regulations & Standards

DEKRA, a global leader in testing, inspection, and certification (TIC) services is proud to announce the launch of its first Digital Trust Conference – a groundbreaking free online event taking place on October 29-30, 2025. The conference will address a critical question in today's digital era: How do we engineer trust into technologies shaping the future?

As technological disruption accelerates, from AI manipulation to quantum computing and automated mobility, building trustworthy systems is more urgent than ever. Through DEKRA's Digital Trust Conference we will feature over 30 global leaders from 19 organizations across 10 expert-led panel discussions, highlighting the convergence of Artificial Intelligence (AI), Cybersecurity, and Functional Safety (FuSa) as foundations for a smarter, more secure, and safer digital future.

This event will provide actionable insights, strategies and tools across three strategic pillars:

- Digital Trust in Technological Trends: Explore how new technologies are transforming the way we communicate, work, and move.
- Digital Trust in Automotive Industry: Identify how automotive industry is embedding trust into complex systems.
- Digital Trust in Regulations & Standards: Discover how current and future regulations bridge innovation and security, reshaping the way organizations develop, test and certify products and systems.
