

Sustainable environmental management thanks to ISO 14001 certification

ISO 14001 product sheet

The expectations surrounding your company's environmental management are increasing all the time due to climate change and new legal requirements. With the certification of your environmental management system according to DIN EN ISO 14001, you demonstrate that you attribute great importance to the responsible use of natural resources and that the protection of the environment is one of your priorities.

What ISO 14001 stands for

This standard is suitable for any organization in any industry and has the goal of striking a balance between economic operational efficiency and environmental protection. ISO 14001 is the world-leading standard for what environmental management in organizations should include and deliver.

The application of this standard allows you to coordinate your environmental activities – with the focus on a continuous process of improvement in terms of your environmental impact. You therefore get an effective tool for discovering your potential savings. With your certification, you demonstrate that you operate in an environmentally sound way. Our certificate and the DEKRA seal often serve as proof of being able to operate in national and international markets.
