

The background image shows four business professionals in a modern office setting. Three men and one woman are standing near a large window, looking at a board with colorful sticky notes. One man is pointing at a note. In the foreground, there is a dark wooden conference table with several black leather chairs. On the table, there are some papers, a pen, and a laptop. The office has large windows that look out onto a cityscape.

Certification of your quality management system according to ISO 9001

ISO 9001 product sheet

Have your commitment to quality confirmed by the internationally recognized DEKRA certificate and test seal, and show your customers that quality is your driving force. The certification of your quality management system according to ISO 9001 creates trust and opens up new markets for you.

Purpose of the ISO 9001 standard

This standard is suitable for any organization in any industry. It has the goal of developing individual areas of potential and increasing customer satisfaction in the interests of achieving corporate goals efficiently and effectively. Introducing a quality management system is therefore a good way to ensure your company is future-proof – despite constantly changing framework conditions and challenges.

A certification demonstrates whether the processes implemented in your company are future-proof according to documented procedures and implemented accordingly. After a successful assessment, our certificate and DEKRA seal often provide the basis for being able to operate in the domestic and international marketplace.
