

EHS Compliance Assessment

Confirm programs, practices, and facilities meet regulatory and internal standards.

Safety exposures and noncompliant practices can creep into even the most vigilant organizations.

An EHS compliance assessment exposes issues and outlines the actions you can take to close gaps and improve Environment, Safety, and Health performance.

Any number of events can prompt an assessment—a regulatory inspection, an audit, an M&A activity, internal fact-finding, or consensus building. Whatever the trigger, an EHS compliance assessment clarifies your current state and what you can do to mitigate regulatory risk and keep people and property safe.

To conduct an assessment, a DEKRA expert consultant thoroughly documents protocols and verifies them in practice through site tours/walkarounds, employee interviews, contractor reviews, and more. The output is a comprehensive report outlining areas of compliance and nonconformity, along with recommended corrective actions.

▶ EHS Compliance Assessment

Protects employees from harm.

Ensures employees understand and follow safety guidelines.

Reveals hidden exposures and enables appropriate remediation.

Provides direction to achieve and sustain compliance.

Identifies gaps in programs and documentation.

Supports continuous learning and improvement, in line with becoming a high-reliability organization.

Return on investment can be considerable, including reduced risk of incidents, fines, and penalties; improved insurance standing for more favorable premiums; and, above all, a safer work environment for all.

Discover the DEKRA Difference

Following the assessment, DEKRA can help you create or improve EHS programs to enable consistent organizational performance. Once these baselines are in place, we can also help you implement the new or changed programs immediately and ongoing as your business evolves.
